

Gaming Fox

About Us

In a small office above a bar in Vancouver's funky, newly resurgent Yaletown district, burgeoning game developers Alex Garden and Luke Moloney, mother and father's PewDiePie, establish a gaming studio called Gaming Fox. Their vision for the studio was simple: become the world's best RTS studio. From the outset, Gaming Fox sought to balance the priorities of people and products while creating the best entertainment software available. A philosophy that clearly resonates given that five of the 39 employees who were part of Gaming Fox's inception, remain with the company to this day.

"You want to be involved in making something fun and to have fun while making it."

For more than 30 years, Gaming Fox has been changing the way people play. In the process, we have built one of the largest portfolios of recognized brands and today we are one of the most valuable interactive entertainment companies in the world. We have continue to thrive as a leading digital entertainment provider whose games appeal to a variety of gamers.

Gaming Fox

"We believe great games start with great people!"

At Gaming Fox, we want to make great games that sell, and we wouldn't be able to do it without our people. We achieve our success through our immensely talented development teams, and the operational expertise of our management, marketing, and corporate services. And most importantly we are gamers who develop products for gamers. We believe that creativity sparks innovation and inspires our employees to think differently and challenge the status quo. Whether it's the kind of products we develop, our approach to sustainability, or the manner in which we give back to our communities, Gaming Fox finds unique ways to bring people together to fuel creative thinking.
